Original survey information, the United States of America 1994

Name of survey Main objective The CPS is the primary source of information on the labour force characteristics of the U.S. population. In addition, this annual Social and Economic Supplement provides supplemental data on work experience, income, non-cush benefits and migration. Structure of data source Population of Main objective Monthly (basic CPS), Annual (March Supplement) Survey year / Wave Cyclina non-institutional population in the United States. CPS coverage varies with age, sex, and race. Generally, coverage is larger for females than for males and larger for non-Blacks than for Blacks. Sampling Multistage probability sample for CPS, plus an additional sample for ASEC to provide more reliable data on Hispanic households. Decennial census constitutes the sampling frame. Solicetion period Interviews were carried out over a three-month period from February to April 1995. Collection period Interviews were carried out over a three-month period from February to April 1995. Collection period The Annual Social and Economic (ASEC) Supplement contains the basic monthly demographic and labor force data collected through monthly interviews, plus additional data on work experience, income, noncash benefits, and migration, collected purely through a special ASEC questionnaire. Politions Household A household consists of all the people who occupy a bousing unit. A house, an apartment or other group of risms, or a single room, is regarded as a housing unit when it is occupied or intended for occupancy as separate living quarters; that is, when the occupants do not live and eat with any other pessons in the structure and there is direct access from the outside or through a common hall. Household head Beginning with the 1980 CPS, the Bureau of the Census discontinued the use of the terms "head of household" and "head of family," Instead, the terms "householder" and "family householder" are used. The householder inferies to the person, any addit member, exciding roomers, boarders, or paid employees. I	Generic information
Institution responsible Main objective The CPS is the primary source of information on the labour force characteristics of the U.S. population. In addition, this annual Social and Economic Supplement provides supplemental data on work experience, income, non-cash benefits and migration. Structure of data source Routing panel data Foregracy Apply Sarvey year / Wave 1995 Loverage Civilian non-institutional population in the United States. CPS coverage varies with age, sex, and race. Generally, coverage is larger for females than for males and larger for non-Blacks than for Blacks. Sampling Sampling Multistage probability sample for CPS, plus an additional sample for ASEC to provide more reliable data on Hispanic households. Decennial census constitutes the sampling frame. Sample size 56.873 households. Interviews were carried out over a three-menth period from February to April 1995. Collection Deficion mode Description of instruments The Annual Social and Economic (ASEC) Supplement Contains the basic monthly demographic and labor force data collected through monthly interviews, plus additional data on work experience, income, noncash benefits, and migration, collected yearly through a special ASEC questionnaire. Definitions Politions A household consists of all the people who occupy a housing unit. A house, an apartment or other group of rooms, or a single room, is regarded as a housing unit when it is occupied or intended for occupancy as separate living quarters; that is, when the occupants do not live and ear with any other persons in the structure and there is direct access from the outside or through a common hall. Household head Beginning with the 1980 CPS, the Bureau of the Census discontinued the use of the terms "head of household" and "hand of from the person (or one of the people) in whose name the housing unit is owned or rented (maintained) or, if there is no such person, any adult member, excituding roomers, boarders, or paid enployees. If the house is owned, the person of u		Current Population Survey (CPS) - March Supplement
Main objective The CPS is the primary source of information on the labour force characteristics of the U.S. population. In addition, this annual Social and Economic Supplement provides supplemental data on work experience, income, non-cash benefits and migration. Structure of data source Potentia gamed data Propulation of the United States CPS coverage varies with age, sex, and race. Generally, coverage Civilian non-institutional population in the United States CPS coverage varies with age, sex, and race. Generally, coverage is larger for females than for males and larger for non-Blacks than for Blacks. Sampling Multistage probability sample for CPS, plus an additional sample for ASFC to provide more reliable data on Hispanic households. Decennial census constitutes the sampling frame. Sollection period Interviews were carried out over a three-month period from February to April 1995. Collection period Interviews were carried out over a three-month period from February to April 1995. Collection period Interviews were carried out over a three-month period from February to April 1995. Collection period Interview was computer assisted telephone interview. Pace-to-face interview and computer assisted telephone interview requency Monthly (basic CPS). Annual (March Supplement) Survey year / Wave 1995 Coverage Civilian non-institutional population in the United States. CPS coverage varies with age, sex, and race. Generally, coverage is larger for females than for males and larger for non-Blacks than for Blacks. Sampling Sampling procedure Multistage probability sample for CPS, plus an additional sample for ASEC to provide more reliable data on Hispanic households. Deceminal census constitutes the sampling frame. Sollection period Collection Collection mode Description of instruments The Annual Social and Economic (ASEC) Supplement contains the basic monthly demographic and labor force data collected through monthly interviews, plus additional data on work experience, income, noncash benefits, and migration, collected yearly through a special ASEC questionnaire. Definitions Household A household consists of all the people who occupy a housing unit. A house, an apartment or other group of rooms, or a single room, is regarded as a housing unit when it is occupied or intended for occupancy as separate living quatters: that is, when the occupants do not live and eat with any other persons in the structure and there is carcess from the outside or through a common hall. Beginning with the 1980 CPS, the Bureau of the Census discontinued the use of the terms "head of family," Instead, the terms "householder" and "family householder" are used. The householder and "head of family," Instead, the terms "householder" and "family householder" are used. The householder refers to the person or one of the people in whose mane the housing unit is owned or rented (maintained) or, if there is no such person or one of the people in whose name the housing unit is owned or rented (maintained) or, if there is no such person or one of the people in more manner the maintained or the wife. The person designated as the householder is the "reference person" to whom the relationship of all other household members, if any, is recorded. Data quality aspect	Main objective	The CPS is the primary source of information on the labour force characteristics of the U.S. population. In addition, this annual Social and Economic Supplement provides supplemental data on work experience, income, non-cash benefits and migration.
Survey var / Wave Coverage 1995	Structure of data source
Coverage Civilian non-institutional population in the United States. CPS coverage varies with age, sex, and race. Generally, coverage is larger for females than for males and larger for non-Blacks than for Blacks. Sampling Sampling procedure Multistage probability sample for CPS, plus an additional sample for ASEC to provide more reliable data on Hispanic households. Decennial census constitutes the sampling frame. 56.873 households. Collection Collection period Interviews were carried out over a three-month period from February to April 1995. Face-to-Tace interview and computer assisted telephone interview. Pescription of instruments Face-to-Tace interview and computer assisted telephone interview. Pescription of instruments A nonal Social and Economic (ASEC) Supplement contains the basic monthly demographic and labor force data collected through monthly interviews, plus additional data on work experience, income, noncash benefits, and migration, collected yearly through a special ASEC questionnaire. Pelfinitions Household A household consists of all the people who occupy a housing unit. A house, an apartment or other group of rooms, or a single room, is regarded as a housing unit when it is occupied or intended for occupancy as separate living quarters; that is, when the occupants do not live and eat with any other persons in the structure and there is direct access from the outside or through a common hall. Help of the people in whose name the housing unit is owned or rented (maintained) or, if there is no such person, any adult member, excluding roomers, boarded, or part definitionally or, if the house is owned or rented priority by a married couple, the householder may be either the husband or the wife. The person designated as the householder is the reference person or one of the people in whose name the housing unit is owned or rented (maintained) or, if there is no such person, any adult member, excluding roomers, boardees, or paid employees. If the house is owned or rented priority by a ma	Frequency coverage is larger for females than for males and larger for non-Blacks than for Blacks. Sampling Sampling procedure Multistage probability sample for CPS, plus an additional sample for ASEC to provide more reliable data on Hispanic households. Decembal census constitutes the sampling frame. So,873 households. Solection Collection Collection mode Face-to-face interview and computer assisted telephone interview. Description of instruments Take-to-face interview and computer assisted telephone interview. Description of instruments Take-to-face interview and computer assisted telephone interview. Description of instruments Take-to-face interview and computer assisted telephone interview. Description of instruments Take-to-face interview and computer assisted telephone interview. Description of instruments Take-to-face interview and computer assisted telephone interview. Description of instruments Take-to-face interview and confluence interview. Description of instruments Take-to-face interview and collected through monthly interviews, plus additional data on work experience, income, noncash benefits, and migration, collected yearly through a special ASEC questionnaire. Description of instruments A household consists of all the people who occupy a housing unit. A house, an apartment or other group of rooms, or a single room, is regarded as a housing unit when it is occupied or intended for occupancy as separate living quarters; that is, when the occupants do not live and eat with any other persons in the structure and there is direct access from the outside or through a common hall. Household beat of family in Instead, the terms "householder" and "family householder" are used. The householder refers to the person (or one of the people) in whose name the housing unit is owned or rented (maintained) or, if there is no such person, any adult member, excluding roomers, boarders, or paid employees. If the house is owned or rented (maintained) or, if there is no such person, any adult member, excl	Survey year / Wave	1995
Multistage probability sample for CPS, plus an additional sample for ASEC to provide more reliable data on Hispanic households. Decembral census constitutes the sampling frame. 56,873 households. Collection The ASEC of Face interview and computer assisted telephone interview. Face-to-face interview and computer assisted telephone interview. A house, an apartment or other group of rooms, or a single room, is regarded as a housing unit when it is cocupied or intended for occupancy as separate living quarters; that is, when the occupants do not live and eat with any other persons in the structure and there is direct access from the outside or through a common hall. Household head Beginning with the 1980 CPS, the Bureau of the Census discontinued the use of the terms "head of household" and "head of family." Instead, the terms "householder" and "family householder are used. The householder refers to the person, any adult member, excluding roomers, boarders, or paid employees. If the house is owned or rented jointly by a married couple, the householder may be either the husband or the wife. The person designated as the householder is the "reference person" to whom the relationship of all other household members, if any, is recorded. Data quality aspects Weighting Weights adjust for non-interview and correct for sampling bias in age, race, sex, Hispa	Coverage
Multistage probability sample for CPS, plus an additional sample for ASEC to provide more reliable data on Hispanic households. Decembral census constitutes the sampling frame. 56,873 households. Collection The ASEC of Face interview and computer assisted telephone interview. Face-to-face interview and computer assisted telephone interview. A house, an apartment or other group of rooms, or a single room, is regarded as a housing unit when it is cocupied or intended for occupancy as separate living quarters; that is, when the occupants do not live and eat with any other persons in the structure and there is direct access from the outside or through a common hall. Household head Beginning with the 1980 CPS, the Bureau of the Census discontinued the use of the terms "head of household" and "head of family." Instead, the terms "householder" and "family householder are used. The householder refers to the person, any adult member, excluding roomers, boarders, or paid employees. If the house is owned or rented jointly by a married couple, the householder may be either the husband or the wife. The person designated as the householder is the "reference person" to whom the relationship of all other household members, if any, is recorded. Data quality aspects Weighting Weights adjust for non-interview and correct for sampling bias in age, race, sex, Hispa	Sampling
Collection period Interviews were carried out over a three-month period from February to April 1995. Collection mode Face-to-face interview and computer assisted telephone interview. The Annual Social and Economic (ASEC) Supplement contains the basic monthly demographic and labor force data collected through monthly interviews, plus additional data on work experience, income, noncash benefits, and migration, collected yearly through a special ASEC questionnaire. Pefinitions Household A household consists of all the people who occupy a housing unit. A house, an apartment or other group of rooms, or a single room, is regarded as a housing unit when it is occupied or intended for occupancy as separate living quarters; that is, when the occupants do not live and eat with any other persons in the structure and there is direct access from the outside or through a common hall. Beginning with the 1980 CPS, the Bureau of the Census discontinued the use of the terms "head of household" and "head of family," Instead, the terms "householder" and "family householder" are used. The householder refers to the person (or one of the people) in whose name the housing unit is owned or rented (maintained) or, if there is no such person, any adult member, excluding roomers, boarders, or paid employees. If the house is owned or rented jointly by a married couple, the householder may be either the husband or the wife. The person designated as the householder is the "reference person" to whom the relationship of all other household members, if any, is recorded. Data quality aspects On-response error Entern non-response error Entern non-resp	Sampling procedure	households. Decennial census constitutes the sampling frame.
Interviews were carried out over a three-month period from February to April 1995. Collection mode Face-to-face interview and computer assisted telephone interview.	Sample size	56,873 households.
Pace-to-face interview and computer assisted telephone interview.	Collection
Description of instruments The Annual Social and Economic (ASEC) Supplement contains the basic monthly demographic and labor force data collected through monthly interviews, plus additional data on work experience, income, noncash benefits, and migration, collected yearly through a special ASEC questionnaire. Definitions Household A household consists of all the people who occupy a housing unit. A house, an apartment or other group of rooms, or a single room, is regarded as a housing unit when it is occupied or intended for occupancy as separate living quarters; that is, when the occupants do not live and eat with any other persons in the structure and there is direct access from the outside or through a common hall. Household head Beginning with the 1980 CPS, the Bureau of the Census discontinued the use of the terms "head of household" and "head of family." Instead, the terms "householder" and "family householder" are used. The householder refers to the person (or one of the people) in whose name the housing unit is owned or rented (maintained) or, if there is no such person, any adult member, excluding roomers, boarders, or paid employees. If the house is owned or rented jointly by a married couple, the householder may be either the husband or the wife. The person designated as the householder is the "reference person" to whom the relationship of all other household members, if any, is recorded. Data quality aspects Non-response error Item non-response / Missing data are assigned values based on hot-deck imputation. Weighting Weights adjust for non-interview and correct for sampling bias in age, race, sex, Hispanic origin, and state of residence. The ASEC file includes a further adjustment so husband and wife of a household receive the same weight. Weight inflates to the total population. Labour market information Injudical aspect of the people	Collection period	Interviews were carried out over a three-month period from February to April 1995.
Description of instruments The Annual Social and Economic (ASEC) Supplement contains the basic monthly demographic and labor force data collected through monthly interviews, plus additional data on work experience, income, noncash benefits, and migration, collected yearly through a special ASEC questionnaire. Definitions Household A household consists of all the people who occupy a housing unit. A house, an apartment or other group of rooms, or a single room, is regarded as a housing unit when it is occupied or intended for occupancy as separate living quarters; that is, when the occupants do not live and eat with any other persons in the structure and there is direct access from the outside or through a common hall. Household head Beginning with the 1980 CPS, the Bureau of the Census discontinued the use of the terms "head of household" and "head of family." Instead, the terms "householder" and "family householder" are used. The householder refers to the person (or one of the people) in whose name the housing unit is owned or rented (maintained) or, if there is no such person, any adult member, excluding roomers, boarders, or paid employees. If the house is owned or rented jointly by a married couple, the householder may be either the husband or the wife. The person designated as the householder is the "reference person" to whom the relationship of all other household members, if any, is recorded. Data quality aspects Von-response ror I term non-response ror Weights adjust for non-interview and correct for sampling bias in age, race, sex, Hispanic origin, and state of residence. The ASEC file includes a further adjustment so husband and wife of a household receive the same weight. Weight inflates to the total population. Labour market information Eligibility In the monthly CPS interview: the employed comprise persons who at present (survey week) have any paid work or at least 15 hours of unpaid family work, as well as being temporarily absent from work during the survey week. (2) In the annual ASE	Collection mode
A household consists of all the people who occupy a housing unit. A house, an apartment or other group of rooms, or a single room, is regarded as a housing unit when it is occupied or intended for occupancy as separate living quarters; that is, when the occupants do not live and eat with any other persons in the structure and there is direct access from the outside or through a common hall. Household head Beginning with the 1980 CPS, the Bureau of the Census discontinued the use of the terms "head of household" and "head of family." Instead, the terms "householder" and "family householder" are used. The householder refers to the person (or one of the people) in whose name the housing unit is owned or rented (maintained) or, if there is no such person, any adult member, excluding roomers, boarders, or paid employees. If the house is owned or rented jointly by a married couple, the householder may be either the husband or the wife. The person designated as the householder is the "reference person" to whom the relationship of all other household members, if any, is recorded. Data quality aspects Von-response error Item non-response / Missing data are assigned values based on hot-deck imputation. Weighting Weights adjust for non-interview and correct for sampling bias in age, race, sex, Hispanic origin, and state of residence. The ASEC file includes a further adjustment so husband and wife of a household receive the same weight. Weight inflates to the total population. Labour market information Eligibility Individuals aged 15 and older Ciphoyment (1) In the monthly CPS interview: the employed comprise persons who at present (survey week) have any paid work or at least 15 hours of unpaid family work, as well as being temporarily absent from work during the survey week. (2) In the annual ASEC interview: the employed comprise persons who have worked at least one hour during 1994 (ILO employed). Mostly individuals; the value of non-cash incomes such as foodstamps, school lunches, energy assistance, medica	Description of instruments	and labor force data collected through monthly interviews, plus additional data on work experience, income, noncash
A household consists of all the people who occupy a housing unit. A house, an apartment or other group of rooms, or a single room, is regarded as a housing unit when it is occupied or intended for occupancy as separate living quarters; that is, when the occupants do not live and eat with any other persons in the structure and there is direct access from the outside or through a common hall. Household head Beginning with the 1980 CPS, the Bureau of the Census discontinued the use of the terms "head of household" and "head of family." Instead, the terms "householder" and "family householder" are used. The householder refers to the person (or one of the people) in whose name the housing unit is owned or rented (maintained) or, if there is no such person, any adult member, excluding roomers, boarders, or paid employees. If the house is owned or rented jointly by a married couple, the householder may be either the husband or the wife. The person designated as the householder is the "reference person" to whom the relationship of all other household members, if any, is recorded. Data quality aspects Von-response error Item non-response / Missing data are assigned values based on hot-deck imputation. Weighting Weights adjust for non-interview and correct for sampling bias in age, race, sex, Hispanic origin, and state of residence. The ASEC file includes a further adjustment so husband and wife of a household receive the same weight. Weight inflates to the total population. Labour market information Eligibility Individuals aged 15 and older Ciphoyment (1) In the monthly CPS interview: the employed comprise persons who at present (survey week) have any paid work or at least 15 hours of unpaid family work, as well as being temporarily absent from work during the survey week. (2) In the annual ASEC interview: the employed comprise persons who have worked at least one hour during 1994 (ILO employed). Mostly individuals; the value of non-cash incomes such as foodstamps, school lunches, energy assistance, medica	Definitions
"head of family." Instead, the terms "householder" and "family householder" are used. The householder refers to the person (or one of the people) in whose name the housing unit is owned or rented (maintained) or, if there is no such person, any adult member, excluding roomers, boarders, or paid employees. If the house is owned or rented jointly by a married couple, the householder may be either the husband or the wife. The person designated as the householder is the "reference person" to whom the relationship of all other household members, if any, is recorded. Data quality aspects	Household	single room, is regarded as a housing unit when it is occupied or intended for occupancy as separate living quarters; that is, when the occupants do not live and eat with any other persons in the structure and there is direct access from the
Missing data are assigned values based on hot-deck imputation.	Household head	"head of family." Instead, the terms "householder" and "family householder" are used. The householder refers to the person (or one of the people) in whose name the housing unit is owned or rented (maintained) or, if there is no such person, any adult member, excluding roomers, boarders, or paid employees. If the house is owned or rented jointly by a married couple, the householder may be either the husband or the wife. The person designated as the householder is the
Missing data are assigned values based on hot-deck imputation.	Data quality aspects
Missing data are assigned values based on hot-deck imputation. Weighting Weights adjust for non-interview and correct for sampling bias in age, race, sex, Hispanic origin, and state of residence. The ASEC file includes a further adjustment so husband and wife of a household receive the same weight. Weight inflates to the total population. Labour market informatio- Eligibility Individuals aged 15 and older Employment (1) In the monthly CPS interview: the employed comprise persons who at present (survey week) have any paid work or at least 15 hours of unpaid family work, as well as being temporarily absent from work during the survey week. (2) In the annual ASEC interview: the employed comprise persons who have worked at least one hour during 1994 (ILO employed). Income Reference period Calendar year 1994 Unit of time Either weekly, monthly, quarterly, yearly or other unit; recalculated to annual by data provider. Unit of collection Mostly individual; the value of non-cash incomes such as foodstamps, school lunches, energy assistance, medicare and Medicaid are calculated at the household level. Faxes and contributions Income data are given gross of taxes and contributions. Tax items are based on imputations. All earnings and income items were subject to topcoding.		-
The ASEC file includes a further adjustment so husband and wife of a household receive the same weight. Weight inflates to the total population. Labour market information Eligibility Individuals aged 15 and older (1) In the monthly CPS interview: the employed comprise persons who at present (survey week) have any paid work or at least 15 hours of unpaid family work, as well as being temporarily absent from work during the survey week. (2) In the annual ASEC interview: the employed comprise persons who have worked at least one hour during 1994 (ILO employed). Income Reference period Calendar year 1994 Unit of time Either weekly, monthly, quarterly, yearly or other unit; recalculated to annual by data provider. Unit of collection Mostly individual; the value of non-cash incomes such as foodstamps, school lunches, energy assistance, medicare and Medicaid are calculated at the household level. Taxes and contributions Income data are given gross of taxes and contributions. Tax items are based on imputations. All earnings and income items were subject to topcoding.	Item non-response / imputation
Eligibility Individuals aged 15 and older (1) In the monthly CPS interview: the employed comprise persons who at present (survey week) have any paid work or at least 15 hours of unpaid family work, as well as being temporarily absent from work during the survey week. (2) In the annual ASEC interview: the employed comprise persons who have worked at least one hour during 1994 (ILO employed). (Interview: the employed comprise persons who have worked at least one hour during 1994 (ILO employed). (ILO employed)	Weighting	The ASEC file includes a further adjustment so husband and wife of a household receive the same weight. Weight
Employment (1) In the monthly CPS interview: the employed comprise persons who at present (survey week) have any paid work or at least 15 hours of unpaid family work, as well as being temporarily absent from work during the survey week. (2) In the annual ASEC interview: the employed comprise persons who have worked at least one hour during 1994 (ILO employed). Income Reference period Calendar year 1994 Unit of time Either weekly, monthly, quarterly, yearly or other unit; recalculated to annual by data provider. Unit of collection Mostly individual; the value of non-cash incomes such as foodstamps, school lunches, energy assistance, medicare and Medicaid are calculated at the household level. Income data are given gross of taxes and contributions. Tax items are based on imputations. All earnings and income items were subject to topcoding.	Labour market information	n at least 15 hours of unpaid family work, as well as being temporarily absent from work during the survey week. (2) In the annual ASEC interview: the employed comprise persons who have worked at least one hour during 1994 (ILO employed). Income Reference period Calendar year 1994 Unit of time Either weekly, monthly, quarterly, yearly or other unit; recalculated to annual by data provider. Unit of collection Mostly individual; the value of non-cash incomes such as foodstamps, school lunches, energy assistance, medicare and Medicaid are calculated at the household level. Taxes and contributions Income data are given gross of taxes and contributions. Tax items are based on imputations. All earnings and income items were subject to topcoding.	Eligibility
Reference period Calendar year 1994 Unit of time Either weekly, monthly, quarterly, yearly or other unit; recalculated to annual by data provider. Unit of collection Mostly individual; the value of non-cash incomes such as foodstamps, school lunches, energy assistance, medicare and Medicaid are calculated at the household level. Taxes and contributions Income data are given gross of taxes and contributions. Tax items are based on imputations. Restrictions All earnings and income items were subject to topcoding.	Employment	at least 15 hours of unpaid family work, as well as being temporarily absent from work during the survey week. (2) In the annual ASEC interview: the employed comprise persons who have worked at least one hour during 1994
Unit of time Either weekly, monthly, quarterly, yearly or other unit; recalculated to annual by data provider. Unit of collection Mostly individual; the value of non-cash incomes such as foodstamps, school lunches, energy assistance, medicare and Medicaid are calculated at the household level. Faxes and contributions Income data are given gross of taxes and contributions. Tax items are based on imputations. All earnings and income items were subject to topcoding.	Income
Unit of time Either weekly, monthly, quarterly, yearly or other unit; recalculated to annual by data provider. Unit of collection Mostly individual; the value of non-cash incomes such as foodstamps, school lunches, energy assistance, medicare and Medicaid are calculated at the household level. Faxes and contributions Income data are given gross of taxes and contributions. Tax items are based on imputations. All earnings and income items were subject to topcoding.	Reference period	Calendar year 1994
Unit of collection Mostly individual; the value of non-cash incomes such as foodstamps, school lunches, energy assistance, medicare and Medicaid are calculated at the household level. Taxes and contributions Income data are given gross of taxes and contributions. Tax items are based on imputations. All earnings and income items were subject to topcoding.	Unit of time	Either weekly, monthly, quarterly, yearly or other unit; recalculated to annual by data provider.
Restrictions All earnings and income items were subject to topcoding.	Unit of collection	Mostly individual; the value of non-cash incomes such as foodstamps, school lunches, energy assistance, medicare and Medicaid are calculated at the household level.
Restrictions All earnings and income items were subject to topcoding.	Taxes and contributions	Income data are given gross of taxes and contributions. Tax items are based on imputations.
Additional remarks	Restrictions	All earnings and income items were subject to topcoding.
	Additional remarks	-

Source: Data provider, see various documents at http://www.census.gov/cps/.